

AF1

Can you follow what the text is about?

Examples of some generic questions:

- What does _____ mean?
- What is the word used to describe how _____ is feeling?
- What could be an alternative word for _____?
- What does the first line/sentence suggest?

*

AF2

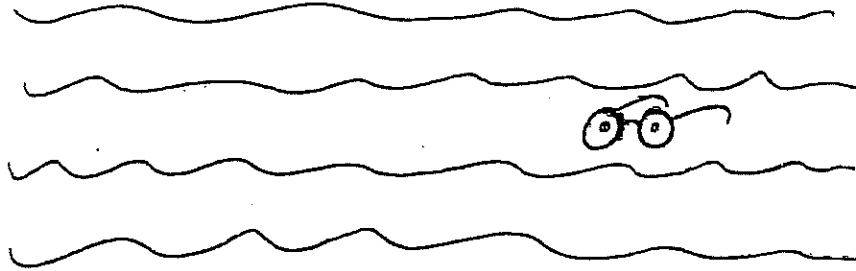

Can you  information from the text and use a quote?

Examples of some generic questions:

- What are the main ideas on Page _____?
- How does _____ behave?
- What additional information does the illustration add?
- What have we found out about _____?
- What evidence is there that _____ is _____?

AF3

Can you explain information and ideas that a writer has hinted at?

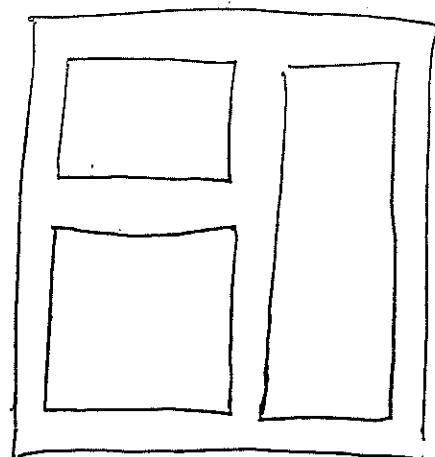

Examples of some generic questions:

- Can you predict what will happen next?
- How does this information connect with what we know from chapter _____?
- Is _____ an important piece of information?
- What is the most significant clue we have read about to describe _____?
- What is _____ motive?
- From what they do/say, what can we explain about _____ personality.

AF4

Can you give reasons why a text is set out this way?

Examples of some generic questions:

- Can you find _____ in the glossary?
- Does the index support/help us find information on _____?
- How does the writer help us to follow information and/or link ideas?
- Is the layout of the poem significant?
- How are diagrams used in this text?
- Why are subheadings used?

AF5

Can you explain how and why a writer uses particular words and sentences?

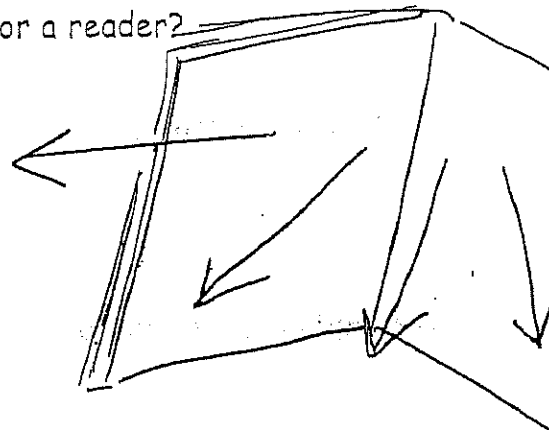

Words, Sentences, Words, Sentences, Words, Sentences?

Examples of some generic questions:

- Can you comment on the effect of _____?
- How does _____ convey meaning?
- What sort of atmosphere does the phrase "_____" create?
- How do we feel about _____?
- When they are described as _____?
- When "_____" is repeated, what is the effect?
- Why has the writer chosen to use the refrain "_____?"

AF6

Can you discuss the effect a writer wanted to create for a reader?

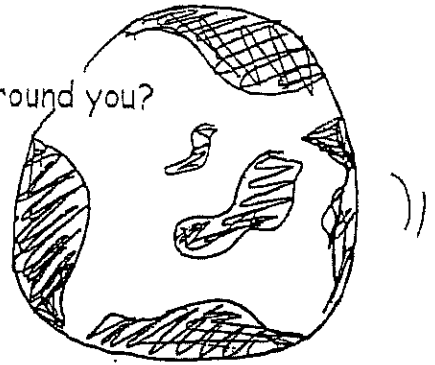

Examples of some generic questions:

- What did you like about _____. Why?
- What did you dislike about _____. Why?
- What is the main purpose of the text?
- What impression does the writer give us about _____?
- What response is the author trying to get from reader; How? Why?

AF7

Can you compare this text to your life or the world around you?

Examples of some generic questions:

- Is this a typical character?
- Do you know of any other stories that have similar characters?
- Is your neighbourhood like this?
- How would you feel if you were _____?
- Can you relate to the theme in the book?
- Have you read other stories/poems with a similar theme?

